The DNA of QA: the 10 Es and Beyond

"INQAAHE provided me with one of the richest professional experiences in my life. There I met the people who gave QA its foundations and generously shared their knowledge and experience. It made me part of an international community with similar goals, which allowed me to learn from my own and their successes and failures. I met different cultures and approaches, and I hope that made me more open to innovation and change. And last, but not least, through INQAAHE I met wonderful people and made some close friends - a precious gift!"

The DNA of QA: the 10 Es and Beyond

INQAAHE is probably one of the few successful practices of a global organization that truly lives by the values of independence, transparency, cultural diversity, member-centrism, and, of course, professionalism. We practice what we preach and we preach what we practice. As simple as it is.

INQAAHE is the best school of diplomacy one can ever dream to be through. One of the key lessons learnt is you either 'swim' or 'sink'. It hones the skills and competencies crucial in an ever-changing and difficult to predict environment, while putting at forefront importance of cultural peculiarities and sensitivities of dealing with and learning from diverse groups.
